

By Hannah Gelati

They call us The Children of the Night
But why must we hide away?
You can live fully if you get it right,
Besides, I've got too much to say.

I won't be muffled or silenced.
I won't hide out of sight
Because I've got things to be doing
And I'm not afraid of the light.

Granted it takes some adjusting
And it isn't easy, I know,
But I've learnt to believe and trust in
What lies outside the window.

It's our world too and we're taking it.
I can do that while still being me.
With protection and forward thinking
We needn't hide from XP.

My hopes for the future are as wide as yours
This is not my all or my centre.
We are not that different you know,
I dream too of a life of adventure.

Don't fear limitation,
Embrace the unique and the rare.
Shine bright like a constellation,
And let them know that you're there.